DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. The numbering of claims is not in accordance with 37 CFR 1.126 which requires the original numbering of the claims to be preserved throughout the prosecution. When claims are canceled, the remaining claims must not be renumbered. When new claims are presented, they must be numbered consecutively beginning with the number next following the highest numbered claims previously presented (whether entered or not).

Misnumbered claims 19-35 been renumbered 14-30.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 14-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Aoki et al. (WO-95/28509).

4. Aoki et al. teach an aqueous coating composition comprising a water soluble polymer (I) corresponding to the applicants' claimed structure (applicants' I and Y¹ together) including the additional amine functionality (II) corresponding to the claimed (II). The ratio of the components fall within the claimed range (page 8, lines 21-26). The examples show the addition of phosphoric acid compounds (phosphoric acid and sodium phosphate), in amounts that would meet the applicants' limitations in this regard.

Art Unit: 1773

5. The applicants claim that the coating has a polymer concentration of 0.01 g/L and the coating has a carbon content of 5-500 mg/m of the coating area. Aoki et al. teach polymer concentrations amounts of about 2 g/ liter or greater according to the examples (see also column 4, lines 25+).

6. The method of formation taught in Aoki et al. is not unlike that claimed (see page 12, lines 1+, and the examples), in which the coating is washed with water then dried.

However, Aoki et al. is silent regarding the thickness of the coatings and the amount of carbon present. Nevertheless, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have varied the concentration of the components used, depending on the thickness of the coating desired, or to have coated the metal with multiple layer as in example 4, depending on the thickness of the desired for a given application, in which the claimed amount of carbon and claimed extent of area coverage flows from the thickness of the layer produced since the same type of polymer and concentration is used thus 90% of the surface would be covered as claimed.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The examiner cites: US 6369149-B1(Yoshida et al).
